No.

What is your current Occupation?

I am a Registered Nurse on the Cardiothoracic Surgery Unit at Kettering Medical Center. We specialize in the care of patients who have just had, or are preparing to have a major open heart, vascular or lung surgery. We also care for patients with chronic cardiovascular and pulmonary diseases as well.

What was your post high school education or training?

After high school, I attended Kettering College for three years. My first year at Kettering was spent taking my general education courses and then I spent two years in the nursing program. I graduated in the summer of 2017 with my Bachelors of Science in Nursing (BSN).

What was your favorite high school course?

My favorite courses in high school were my Agriculture classes and my Anatomy and Physiology class. My A&P class was my favorite because it helped to prepare me for classes that I would take in my college career and helped to fuel my interest in the medical field. I also loved learning about the many parts and functions of the human body so the class was very interesting to me. Although my career is not based in the agricultural field, my Ag classes were some of my favorites because I have always had a deep appreciation for agriculture. However, my passion is to care for those who are sick and who are in need of my care at the most vulnerable times of their lives.

What do today's students need to know?

Today's students need to know the importance of preparing for your future. Taking your education very seriously in high school is crucial to your success after you graduate. If continuing your education after high school is part of your plan, do not be afraid to pursue your goals and go after what you want. Explore colleges you may be interested in attending and majors you think you might like. It never hurts to apply to all of the colleges you may be interested in. Try your hardest in high school to prepare yourself for the future. College is hard, but it is worth every moment. Pursuing the fast track to a three year bachelors degree was the best decision I ever made and I now work full time in the medical field three years after graduating high school. You can do anything you set your mind and heart on.
