What do today's students need to know?

Understand that having a focus on school is important, from day 1. It does not matter if you are a freshman in high school or a senior, about to embark on college, focus on your studies. You cannot afford to throw away your freshman year because you will feel it in your GPA for the rest of your time at that school. Trust me, my college GPA was a point and a half higher than my high school GPA. Get to know your teachers and professors, develop relationships with them, those relationships will help you in times of need that you wouldn't imagine at the time.
